Help for Heroes

Prince William opens Headley Court troop rehab centre in Surrey

Prince William recently opened new facilities for the armed forces at a new rehabilitation centre at Headley Court in Surrey.

This Help for Heroes centre was built using public donations from the Help for Heroes charity.

Triumph is particularly proud to have provided some of the key furniture needed for office support in the facility.

Speaking about this work, Andrew Jackson, Chief Executive of Triumph said, 'We are very pleased indeed to be part of the Help the Heroes effort in supplying as we did. What we supplied reflects the full range of Triumph's new capabilities - not just storage but desking and seating as well. This is exactly the kind of rehabilitation effort we are delighted to be associated with.'
